

HOW CO-EDITIONING WORKS

Co-editing allows the local partner to publish top quality, full colour books, tailored for their market, at a fraction of the cost of producing a small individual print run. Anno Domini produces each book with text and illustrations of the highest standard. As the concepts and spreads are developed they are shared with partners at bookfairs or via PDF and e-mail.

Once language partners decide to publish, they translate the text, adapting it to local needs, place it in position using files supplied by us, then produce and send to us PDFs of the black language text only. The partner then has plotter proofs to sign-off their edition.

All language partners share a common format, design and illustration package but have the book in their own language, translated, adapted, checked and controlled by them.

Each publishing partner buys exclusive publishing rights for their agreed market area when they contract to buy a book from Anno Domini.
